Information collected by this Website

Information that is routinely collected by this Website falls into the two categories of email us/quote request forms and Website log files:

- Email us/ quote request forms

This Website provides an email button to allow Users to contact Nomadic Adventures. Certain pages also have a quote request form. The information collected will be stored and used for the purpose of fulfilling the Nomadic Adventures service.

Information collected from these sources is not stored on this Website, but is instead sent to a separate service desk system that is accessible only by authorised Nomadic Adventures staff. These email us/quote request forms are not intended for the transmission of confidential or security-related material and should not be used for such purposes.

- Website log files

All Websites produce log files that record the activity on that site. Log files record which pages on the site have been accessed and how many times. From this information it is possible to produce statistics such as how busy this Website is, which pages are the most popular and whether there are any broken links.

When you unsubscribe, some material, including log and activity records, may remain in our database for management information purposes but it is disassociated from any personal identifiers.

Log files typically record the IP address and/or hostname of all users accessing this Website. This allows us to distinguish between different users and therefore estimate the number of unique visitors to this Website. IP addresses and hostnames are not linked to any individual's personally identifiable information.

Specific IP addresses and hostnames will only be used by Website log file software to compile overall summary statistical reports on the performance of this Website

Website log files are stored securely on this Website using industry best practice methods for safeguarding information and server functions.

IP addresses and hostnames

An IP address is the numeric address of a computer. The IP address recorded on Website log files is the address provided by your internet service provider's equipment and not your own personal computer's address.

Hostnames are similar in appearance to the domain names you see in URLs and email addresses. The hostnames recorded on Website log files are those of the internet service provider's equipment that you are using to access the internet, and not your own computer's name or location.

Your internet service provider will keep records of which customer is using any IP address or hostname at any given time, and so it is theoretically possible to trace back activity shown on any Website log file to a specific individual. In practice, this can only be done with the explicit involvement of the internet service provider, and such a trace would therefore only take place in the event of serious criminal misuse of the internet and would be carried out by the relevant law enforcement authority (that is the Police).

Nomadicadventures.co.za will not attempt to associate IP addresses and hostnames with individuals. In the event of serious criminal misuse of this Website the matter would be referred to the relevant law enforcement authorities for investigation.

This Privacy policy only covers this Website and does not cover links within this Website to other Websites.
